"An innocent man need never be afraid to face a jury," so spoke a young lawyer but Intely admitted.

"Well," said I, from a layman's point of view, "I think that if I thought the chances against me, no matter how innocent I were I would decline the honor." I had jus dropped in for a friendly chat and smoke with my friend, Richard Boynton, an old lawyer well known for an extensive clientele among staid and quiet old Knickerbocke families. Turning to him, I said, as I lighted a cigar; "What say you, Dick?"

KING'S PALACE, SENATE PROGRESS IS SLOW

Two Amendments to the Pirst Paragraph of the Bill Voted Down.

HARRIS WANTS LONGER SESSION

Suggestion That the Senate Convene at 10 O'clock Meets with Opposition-Senator Hill Present, but Not Voting-Chandler Teasing the Democrats.

The tariif discussion yesterday was open by an amendment offered by Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire, providing for retaliation against Canada for high duties imposed by that country. Other Senators expressing desire to speak on that subject, it was delayed until a later date.

The first paragraph in the tariff schedules, viz: that of acetic or pyroligenous acid, in the chemical schedule, was then taken up, and Senator Allison, taking the floor, offered an amendment substituting the provision in the McKinley law on this article for the provision in the pending bill of 20 per cent, ad valorem.

The amendment is as follows: "Acetic or pyroligenous acid, not exceeding the specific gravity of one and forty-seven one-thousandths 11/2 cents per pound; exceeding the specific gravity of one and torty-seven one-thousandths, 4 cents per pound."

Mr. Allison spoke against the change made from the present law, and especially criticised the change from specific to ad valorem duties. He called attention to the fact that the acetic acid duty in the Mills bill was in accordance with the specific system, and intimated that. Mills had not in that instance been unfriendly to specific rates. Rising at this juncture, Mr. Mills said the Iowa Senator was doing him entirely too much honor. "I was doing him entirely too much honor. "I was not," he said, "responsible for the specific rates in the Mills bill. The Senator knows very well that no one man makes a tariff

Mr. Mills then urged that the acid and all Mr. Mills then urged that the acid and all other chemicals should go on the free list, and if not that the duties should be advaloren and not specific, so that the people should know how much they were taxed.

The vote on Mr. Allison's manendment was a strict party one, 32 against and 27 for; so the Iowa Scantor at once modified his amendment to make the duty specific at rates from 1 to Jeents a nound.

o make the duty specific at rates from 1 to leants a pound.

Mr. Lodge here suggested that it would be a good plan to have the replies of the queries of the Finance Committee now before the senate, so as to aid in the consideration of the bill. Mr. Vest explained that printing of replies had been stopped, because many re-plies were made up of personal abuse on Sen-ators. He cared nothing about it, but other Senators might.

Mr. Chandler had understood that these circular replies were to have taken the place of hearings. Now their publication was to be stopped because some of them were

Mr. Chandler then entered a long protest against ad valorem duties, reading long news-paper extracts, etc., to show how unsatisfacpaper extracts, etc., to saw now unsaissac-tory their administration had been. Mr. Frye bore personal testimony to the ease with which frauds were perpetrated under the ad valorem system, and went on to say that he had served on a tariff committee with Mr. Mills twenty years ago and it was useless to argue with him. He was an ad valorem crank. He had never seen but one theorist whom he lie had never seen but one theorist whom he was able to convince. That man was Prof. Agassiz. He told the professor on one occasion that he had caught a trout weighing nine pounds. Mr. Agassiz informed him of the utter impossibility of such a feat and called his attention to one of his recent magnaine stricks. Some time afterward he said the articles. Some time afterward he sent the professor a trout weighing eight pounds and received from him a note saying that the theory of a life time had been kicked to death by a stubborn fact.

At this point Mr. Harris attempted to offer At this point ar. Harris attempted to one a resolution that the Senate meet at 10 o'clock each morning until otherwise ordered. Mr. Hoar objected. "All right," said Mr. Harris, "it will come up again."

Mr. Dolph (Ore, then took the floor. He desired to complete the branch of the subject he was on when he hast had the floor, as his cases, was in type at the Government. Point.

speech was in type at the Government Print-ing Office and the Public Printer was com-plaining that the type locked up in his speech was crippling the work of the office. "I want to complete the first haif of my speech," said he, "so that it can be printed and the Public Chr. Heurich Printer can have his type." [Laughter.]

After Mr. Dolph had discoursed on the tariff of 1848 Senator Lodge reliterated his suggestion as to the printing of the replies. Senator Voorhees denied that the printing had been stopped. They would be ready in another stopped. They would be ready in another day. There was then a short colloquy between Senators Chandler and Voorhees on the subject, when the vote was taken on Mr. Allison's modified amendment. It was lost. It was noticed that Mr. Hill (N.Y.) although present did not vote. Upon the announce-ment Mr. Jones (Ark.) offered the first of the "compromise" amendments to change the rate on boracle acid from 20 per cent, ad valorem to 2 cents per pound.

Mr. Perkins, of California, offered an amendment to this amendment to make the duty 5 cents per pound (the present duty). California, he said, was the pioneer state in the development of the borax industry. Under a protective tariff the price had fallen from 25 to 8 cents per pound, and a reduction of the duty to 2 cents would paralyze the industry.

At this point the resolutions on the death of Mr. Brattan, of Maryland, were introduced and passed, and the Senate as a mark of re-spect adjourned.

REDUCTIONS IN EVERY SCREDULE, Senator Jones Compares Notes in Proposed

Bill with the Mckinley Tariff, Senator Jones, of Arkansas, was asked vester tions or statements that the amendments recently proposed by him, as is understood, on behalf of the Democratic members of the Finance hehalf of the Democratic members of the Finance Committee, are not materially below the rates in the McKinley bill.

"They are," he said, "utterly without founda-tion in fact. A very vivid imagination or a reci-less disregard of plain facts must have aug-gested these statements. Take, for example, two of the most important schedules in the bill, weed and iron. I have had made a careful comparative statement of the rates in the Mc-Kinley bill and the present bill as we propose to amend it, both reduced to ad valorem rates for better comparison."

Sedalia's End Bank Failure. The Comptroller of the Currency has appointed William A. Latimer, the present bank examiner n Missouri, receiver of the First National hand at Sedalla, Mo. Mr. Eckels thinks the failure is a bad one, and that it is absolutely necessary to have some one with all necessary authority in charge at once. The appointment of Mr. Lati-mer is a temporary one, to last two or three months until affairs are in better shape.

Boynton added: "Til give you a case in point if you like. It is about ien years ago when I was aroused about 2 o'clock in the morning by a messenger from a police court, the bearer of a hastily scribbled note from an old client of mine. He was a childless widower, much interested in Egyptology, and consequently spent much of his time in Egypt. Being rich, he could afford this expensive hobby. He was of a very quiet and retiring disjosition, disliking all kinds of publicity or notoriety, and like many studious men was oftimes very absent-minded.

"The note I received ran:

"The note I received ran: DEAR BOYNTON—They have brought me down here on some absurd charge or other. Come and arrange for my release immediately. R. R. HOWLEY

"I hastened to the relief of my client. Now, I must tell you he was very fastidious in his dress, and particularly natty and trim in his appearance. He were a brown beard, cut in vandyke fashion. The Stock Moves Up Without the Excuse o Affecting News-New York, May 10.—It was not an active mar-tet to-day, but the trading was fairly well distributed. The industrial group took about one-third of the business, with sugar as usual in the lead. St. Paul was most active of the railway list, and was the only one of this class of stocks in which transactions exceeded ten thousand list, and was the only one of this class of stocks in which transactions exceeded ten thousand shares.

At the opening the general market was firm, and a majority of the shares traded in showed an advance on the closing figures of yesterday, exceptions being lillinois. Central, Louisville and Kashville and General Electric. The speculation was unsettled during the first half hour of business, but gradually assumed a strong tone, the Grangers and Industrials being most prominent in the upward movement.

The improving tendency of the market continued into the afternoon, with sugar as the leader, having made a gain of 1½ up to midday. The buying in the stock became quite pronounced after noon, and was for both long and short accounts, causing an additional advance of 2½, to 107½. A slight bear demonstration subsequently caused a reaction of 3½ tut the final sales were at a recovery of 3½ making the advance on the day 3½. Sugar preferred mades gain of 1½; closing at the highest of the day.

The general list was strong throughout the afternoon until just before 3 o'clock, when a fractional reaction set in, due mainly to realizations, and the market closed slightly heavy and somewhat irregular, but in a majority of cases at an advance on last night's closing figures. The rise in sugar was unaccompanied by news affecting the stock and apparently was due to a squeeze of the shorts, who were inclined to sell by the artificial weakness displayed during the stock weeks. The liquidation in General Electric was resumed this morning, foulding the stock offered was absorbed checked the selling and induced buying, causing a raily of 1½, the final sale being within ½ of the highest point touched. Chicago Gas was favorably affected by the Senate Not to Be Intimidated By Any Coxey Mob Demonstrations.

APPLAUSE IN THE GALLERIES

Teller Favors Allen's Resolutions, and Harris Will Vote for an Investigation to Vindicate the Capitol Police-Stewart's Demagogism Aroused the Massachusetts Senator.

When the Allen resolutions relative to the Coxey incident came up yesterday in the Senate, Senator Gordon, of Georgia, opened the criticism upon it, declaring that its inspiration was paternalism. After stating that the movement began in a state wealthy, populous and intelligent, Mr. Gordon called at tention to the fact that the movment seemed to attract attention and sympathy everywhere recovered from the condition in which it was left at the close of the war. The proper left at the close of the war. The proper remedy for the present condition of affairs was a decentralization of power.

Senator Teller, of Colorado, who followed, said that inasmuch as everywhere throughout the country the opinion seemed to prevail that Coxey and his followers had been treated with excessive and unnecessary severity, he favored the appointment of a committee of investigation. Faiture to do this would have the tendency to inflame this element of the people and lead other tands of a like character to start for Washington. Coxey was a law-abiding citizen. He and his followers had trudged here through the rain and mud and were entitled to respectful consideration. The police had treated them shamefully. He did not think the Senate could refuse to investipolice had treated them shamefully. He did not think the Senate could refuse to investi-gate the police clubbing, as he himself would furnish the names of witnesses. The scheme was a foolish one, but not a wicked one. He had heart the Senator from Ohio (Mr. Sher-man) advocate measures not as sensible as Mr. Coxey's and infinitely more objectionable and indefensible. If the resolutions were pigeon-holed it would increase the danger from the present condition of affairs. If an investigation were held, the people would be satisfied.

After Senator Teller, Senator Stewart got the floor, but he was not allowed to go very far, for Senator Hoar soon interrupted him.
The Massachusetts Senator declared he did not want to enter the debate, as it would be unprofitable. People out of employment understood the movement, and any attempt to appeal to public prejudice would fall flat.

Congress must have the power to protect itself from disorderly assemblies. There was always danger from them, however peaceable they might be.

Within ten years an attempt has been made to blow up the houses of Parliament; within two years another attempt to blow up the French Assembly. Two Presidents of the United States have been murdered—one in a crowd at a depot, the other in a crowd at a theater—by misguided and fanatical persons, to whom the peaceable assemblages afforded an opportunity to escape. This is why in the provisions of the riot law in every state, when the magistrate reads the act, all the people must go home. A man may be there with peaceable intentions, but if, when the riot act is read, he refuses to go, he is liable to punishment.

"It is needless for me," said Mr. Hoar, drawing himself up and looking about the chamber, his eyes pausing when they reached Mr. Allen and Mr. Stewart, "to declare that I sympathize with them a great deal more than some of those who always prate of sympathy for the down-trodden in order to advance their disgraceful political ambitions."

The galleries burst into ringing applause at The galleries burst into ringing applause at this utterance, and in order to quell the demonstration Mr. Faulkner, who was in the chair, was forced to use his garel vigorously and threaten to clear the galleries.

Mr. Hoar closed with an impressive declaration that the Senate would stand on its constitutional rights, and that it would not be freely and into close with an interest for the standard into close when yet was not best for

To the Editor of THE TIMES: To the Editor of Tar Thurs:

It is very evident that the authorities of the District of Columbia are a great deal more anxious to extinguish Coxey than they are to clean up woste places.

The commonweal had scarcely passed the boundaries of Onio when the three great Hs,viz: the Commissioners of the District, gave a very labored and profound proclamation touching the approaching body of citizens and voters.

Then the little winded his born and made threats that the policein his charge would arrest the Coxey army on sight as vagrants.

But they came along all the same, and are here to stay, and they will stay till their work is done.

the laws of the land, or the District of Columbia either, and they manifest a desire to comply with all which can be required of them under the Constitution of the United States of America. It truly begins to look as if the Constitution amounts to about as little as the Ten Commandments do in the District of Columbia. It is to be hoped that Coxey and all his followers will bear and forbear, obeying the laws and enroaching on no rights of others until endurance ceases to be a victue, when his principles will have enough indersers to hurl every sneaking sycophant from power and all more porate a little justice into the affairs of tills cointry, including the little patch called the District of Columbia.
